The Auction System We have been satisfied, for some time, of the auction system, particularly in the present excessive extent to which it is carried in the large cities. This grievance has been long felt, and complained of, but, until lately, endured; finally, perceiving that the calamitous tendency of this gambling mode of disposing of goods, had brought about a state of things nearly insufferable, the merchants of New-York recently held a public meeting, and set forth their dress, why the present auction system auction. Our columns are so engrossed, at this time, with the insertion of two long advertisements, and the publication of the U. Carolina and Georgia, particularly the two latter states, the opposition to the new tariff has assumed a seemingly serious aspect. A meeting took place in Colleton district, S. C. on the 12th ult. at which resolutions, and an address, couched in the strongest terms of reprobation of the tariff and its supporters, were adopted : they advise an open resistance to the operation of the tariff; asserting, that they "have done by words all that words can do;" and that " to talk more, must be a dastard's refuge!" We regret this angry tone into which our neighbors have been betrayed by their honest zeal in manifesting their indignant feelings at the passage of a law which it is believed will operate ruinously on the merchant and southern planter. We can fully appreciate the mingled feelings of dey and indignation with which they measure that is expected to blight all their nopes of profit or reward for their labor and enterprise and we feel, with them, that at is grievously oppressive for the citizens of one section of the Union to be laid under contribution to sate the gluttonous appetites of those of another section, who have already been pampered into a supercilious spissitude..... to minister to the insatiable capidity of a community of soulless manufacturing corporations, actuated alone by the selfish motive of personal aggrandizement. But we cannot think, with nem, that "we must resist the impositions of this tariff;" we cannot ourselves, nor can we, without painful emotions, see others place themselves in " an attitude of open resistance to the laws of the Union !" We would yet continue to use milder means to redress our grievances: we still think it better "to bear the ills we have. than fly to others we know not of ;" we would remonstrate, again and again, against these oppressions of the general government, bafor would break a single link in the chain that binds together this confederacy of free Republics : We would, bearing in remembrance the venerated advice of the Father of the Republic, cling to the last floating plank of the ark of our country's safety, the Constitution, which guarantees the stability of the Union. The first article in our political creed, is the inviolability of the Un. son of the States : and we cannot hear the dissolution of the Union even mentioned as a possibility, without its causing us the most painful forebodings. And we hope, and believe, that the people in our sister state will, upon reflection, take no step that may be construed into any thing like an incurrectionary movement; that a manly, determined, and constitutional opposition to the measure, will be all that their love of country will suffer them to do in relation to this delicate subject.

If the warmth and honest zeal of our neighme in South Carolina, have led them into a reprehensible violence, what must we think or my of those hotspurs among us who would rEED the flame that has been kindled there, by using, in speaking of the conduct of their brethren, such language as is of a peculiarly inflamatory character :- Charging the mischiefs they are pleased to say will result from the present excitement against the tariff, to the account of the Jackson party !- when, as a party, the friends of Jackson are no more accountable for the indiscretions of the anti-tariffites in S. C. than John Quincy Adams is for the stupid fibs and fooleries of some of his supporters. Political incendiaries, is a term not a whit too harsh to apply to such people.

The Colleton address is accompanied by a request to the Governr of South Carolina to call the General Assembly of that state together immediately.

The Georgia Southron also suggests the idea of a Congress of those states opposed to the Tariff.

The students of Columbia College have adopted resolutions, that they will to not hereafter wear any fabric manufacsured in the states north of the Potomac.

The character of the resistance which the people of Colleton will oppose to the tariff law, is this: 1. A resort to arms. or resistance by present violence, is not contemplated. 2. But the people of the State shall meet in Legislature or Conand put forth a solemn manifesto narrowly expressing their determination not to en- numbers of these venomous reptiles have dure the oppression of the Tariff. 3. A deputation shall be appointed to attend the next session of Congress, not to rea son, or argue, or remonstrate, or implore -but to demand in the name of the people of the State, a repeal of the Tariff. Further than this it is not intended to go at present. So far as this, the people have a right to go; and if they will but stop there, the frothy abuse of those who denounce these proceedings as treasona- leigh Star, by the Central Jackson ble, will excite no other feelings than those of scorn and contempt.

Granville .- Our readers will have seen a long publication in our paper, a few weeks since, on the ruinous tendency of the Banking system in this state, which emanated from a public meeting of the citizens of Granville county. From a private source, we learn that Robert Pot. These traducers of the Hero and Patter, Esq. who attracted some notice in the riot, will meet their reward some day legislature a year or two since, is the ant and that not very remote.

Opposition to the Tarif in Virginia, South | ther of this address, resofutions, &c : that | he is a candidate for the legislature, and will probably be elected by means of the anti-banking bobby. The excitement among the people of Granville, in relation to the Banks, is said to take precedence of the presidential question; it almost totally absorbs the public attention. We learn that there is not division enough among the people, on the presidency, to raise any thing like an excitement they are all for Jackson there.

Treasury Department, May 28, 1828 :

The "Act for the relief of certain surviving officers and soldiers of the revoluapproved on the 15th day of May. 1828, (of which the foregoing is a copy,) will be carried into effect under the following regulations :

Each officer claiming under the act, will transmit to the secretary of the treasury a declaration, according to the form hereunto annexed, marked A, and each non commissioned officer, musician, and private, according to the form marked B. accompanied by the oath of two respectable witnesses, as to his identity, which oath is to be taken before a justice of the peace, or other magistrate, duly empow ered to administer oaths in the state or territory in which he resides, and authenticated under the scal of the court of the county in which the oath was administered, as shown in the said forms.

Each officer will also transmit his commission, if in existence and attainable, and each non-commissioned officer, musician, and private, his discharge; which be returned. If the commission or dis charge has been lost or destroyed, he will transmit such other evidence as he may possess or can obtain, corroborative of the statements set forth in his declaration.

If the evidence transmitted, taken in connexion with that afforded by the pub lic records at Washington, be found ory, the amount of two years' full pay, at the rate to which the officer or soldier was entitled, according to his rank in the line, at the close of the war, or at the time of his reduction, (as the case may be.) but in no instance exceeding the full pay of a captain of the continental line, will be transmitted to him, at the place that of his residence, after deducting there from the amount of any pension which he may have received from the United States since the 3d day of March, 1826. He may, however, authorize any other person to receive it for him; in which case, he will execute a power of attorney, according to the annexed form, marked C, which must be acknowledged before a justice of the peace, or other magistrate, and authenticated under the seal of the court of the county, in the same manner as is already prescribed in regard to declarations. Bu no payment will be made to any such attorney, until he has made oath, according to the annexed form D, that the pay which he is authorized to receive is intended to enure wholly to the personal benefit of the officer or soldier whose attorney he is.

THE MARRIAGE SCENE

TR. NONTROMENT.

"Young, chaste, and lovely—pleased, yet half Before you altar droops a plighted maid, [afraid, Clad in her bridal robe of taintless white, Dumb with the scene, and trepid with delight; Around her hymeneal guardians stand, Each with a tender look and feeling bland; And oft she turns her beauty-beaming eye, Dimm'd with a tear of happiness gone by! Then coyly views, in youth's commanding pride; Her own adored one panting by her side; Like lilies bending from the noon-tide blaze, Her bashful eye. Iids droop beneath his gaze; While love and homage blend their bilistul power and shed a halo round his marriage hour! What though his chance-abounding life ordain A path of anguish and precarious pain; By wane or woe, where'er compell'd he rove, A cot's a palace by the light of love! There heats one heart which, until death, will be A gushing, glowing fount of sympathy: One frownless eye to kindle with his own, One changeless friend, when other friends are O! sanction Thou the love-united nair. One frownies eye to kindle with his own, One changeless friend, when other friends are O! sanction Thou the love-united pair, [flown; Fountain of love! for Thou art present there."

MISCELLANEOUS

DEATH.

The annexed paragraph is an eloquent delineation of what all can feel, but what few can so faithfully describe. It is from a novel, entitled ' Marriage, a work written with uncommon power and ability: There is, perhaps, no feeling of our nature so vague, so complicated, so mysterious as that in which we look upon the cold remains of our fellow mortals. The dignity with which death invests even the meanest of its victims, inspires us with an awe no living thing can create. swful than the beggar in his shroud. The marble features—the powerless hand-the stiffened limbs-oh! who can contemplate these with feelings that can be defined? These are the mockery of all our hopes and fears, our fondest love, our idlest hate. Can it be, that we now shrink with horror from the touch of that hand which but yesterday was fondly clasped in our own? Is the tongue whose accents even now deell in our ear, forever chained in the silence of death? These black and heavy eyelids-are they forever to seal up in darkness the eyes whose glance no earthly power could restrain? And the spirit which animated the clay, where is it now? Is it wrapt in bliss, or dis-solved in wo? Does it witness our grief, and share our sorrows? Or is the mysterious type that linked it with mortality forever broken? And the remembrance of earthly scenes-are they indeed to the enfranchised spirit as the morning dream, or the dew upon the early flower? Reflections such as these naturally arise in every breast. Their influence is felt, though their import cannot always be expressed. The principle is the same, however it may differ in its operations."

Silk .- The silkworm is a native of China. The Seres, who inhabited the northern part of that country cultivated the precious article. Having been expelled by the Huns, A. D. 93, they settled in Little Bucharia. Silks were first brought from China to Syria and Egypt by traders, who, in caravans, performed journeys of 243 days through the deserts of Asia. The price was far beyond the reach of any but the rich, and for a long time the use of silk among the Romans was confined to women of fortune. The Emperor Aurelian refused his queen a garment of silk, by reason of the high price it bore-its weight in gold. In the 6th century, two monks, who had been employed as missionaries in the east, penetrated into the country of the Seres, and observed the labors of the silkworms, and the manner of working their production into elegant arately as may best suit the purchaser; which is likewise first rate land.

The subscriber being determined to return to the eastern part of the State to reside next winter, offers for sale his valuable Plantation in Rowan county, containing three hundred and twenty-one acres; all of which is of a superior quality. Those who have seen the land, say it is equal to any in the county. There are excellent buildings of every description on the place. Persons who want a healthy situation, a good stand for a Store, and an elegant farm, will be very much pleased with the land. The land is ten miles west of Salisbury, on the Sherrell's Pord road, adjoining the lands of Mr. Allmand Hall, Mr. Joseph Cowan, and others. a cane, and brought them safely to Constantinople about the year 555.

The eggs were hatched, and the worms fed with mulberry leaves; and the insects produced from the canc-full of eggs, were the progenitors of all the silk worms of Europe and the western part of Asia. The people of the Morea, and of cities of Athens and Thebes, enjoyed the profit of the culture and manufacture of silk upwards of 460 years; but in 1146 the king of Sicily made war upon Greece and carried off a great number of silk weavers, who taught the Sicilians to raise silkworms and to weave silk stuffs. The Saraand to weave silk stuffs. The Saracens introduced the silk manufacture into Spain and Portugal; and subsequently the Italian States, France and England engaged in it.
